King's Silver Jubilee Is Fittingly Observed

A song of thanksgiving from the pen of Mr. John Macdonald, poet laureate of England, and which appeared in print for the first time last week end, reads as follows:

Scattered beneath the mansions of the sun.

In distant continents, in every sea,
The many nations that are made up of us.

King, law and language give us unity;
Our many peoples seldom speak together.

And yet, in stormy days, we link and link
In common purpose facing to the weather.

Swayed by one will and striving as one hand;
Being for freedom and for peace, our way.

Is worth men's caring, we may still behold
The world's tomorrow spring from our today.

With happier morning brighter than the old;
In hope of such a morrow's dawn we sing.

God prosper, bless, and save our Gracious King.

and such a spirit was well evinced on Monday last when the local branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E. 21, sponsored the planting of a splendid mountain ash tree on the grounds of the Federal building as a lasting memorial of the occasion.

Led by the Town Band, and accompanied by the members of the Town Council, a large number of the "Vets" under the command of Major J. A. Macdonald, paraded from the Town Hall to the site of the planting.

Mr. C. T. Lally, president of the local branch having charge there.

Mayor Dr. J. G. Middleman, in addressing the large crowd assembled spoke as follows:

"On this memorable occasion of the Silver Jubilee Celebration of the coronation of their most gracious majesties, King George and Queen Mary, I am very happy, as Mayor of Wainwright, to have the opportunity to take part in an official capacity in the small way in which we as members of the great British Empire are celebrating this wonderful event.

Twenty-five years is a long time to reign, and this reign of our present sovereign has been one replete with many history-making epochs and a fast moving development of our modern civilization. That great war, which was almost universal, happened in this reign and it was then, in war as well as in peace, that their Majesties showed to the whole world that they had only one ideal in view, namely to be an example to the people who placed their trust in them as heads of a vast empire.

We are really happy then to gather together today and with the whole British Empire, yes, and with the whole world, to congratulate their Majesties and to rejoice with them, and to wish them that they may long reign over us, as well as to partake of their rejoicings on this their Silver Jubilee.

In other parts of the Empire the celebrations are taking on vast proportions, but that what it may, we are as much an integral part of the British Empire as in the city of London, and our modest celebration is only one link in that chain of celebrations which today encircle the globe.

We may not be able to erect a large monument to commemorate this glorious occasion but gathered together to witness the planting of this tree, sponsored by the Wainwright Branch of the Canadian Legion we are joining in a celebration, which I think you will agree with me, is most symbolic of the great nation to which we belong.

The illustration I wish to draw from this, fellow citizens, is the fact that the tree we are planting today to commemorate the Silver Jubilee, is a fitting example of the unity of the British Empire, the only monarchy of any great proportions, worthy of the name, that is a leading factor in world events of today; the only monarchy that has withstood the aftermath of the war and still stands as the leading power of the world. This tree typifies that great empire because, like a tree, Great Britain, the Motherland, is the trunk and the various colonies and possessions, the branches. As the branches get their life-giving sap and vitality from the main stem (or trunk) so we as Canadians get our privileges and constitutional liberty, in the first instance, from that motherland across the sea, as one of the great branches of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

On this occasion then, the planting of this tree is a most fitting way in which to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the coronation of their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary."

At the close of his address, the Mayor very graciously presented to Miss L. Page, superintendent at the hospital, the Jubilee medal which has been bestowed by King George upon that lady, who replied with a few gracious thanks.

The tree having been placed in its new bed by a couple of stalwart veterans, Premier Reid remains mum.

On Monday the premier was asked about that the latest report that the date would be June 28 or thereabouts.

"There is nothing to announce?" he said.

"When will the date be announced?" he was asked.

Again the premier was silent concerning any date, prospective, possible or remotely probable.

SEPARATE SCHOOL GIRLS
HOLD DANCE FRIDAY LAST

On Friday last a dance composed largely of the younger set was held in the I.O.O.F. Hall under the auspices of the Girls of the Separate School. Although only a fair attendance was present a good lively time was had by those attending. Lunch was served at midday.

At the close all the children present received an invitation to attend the free matinee show at the theatre through the beneficence of Mr. W. Brunner.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express to the very many friends and acquaintances our extreme thanks for all the respect and attention paid to the late Mr. H. Meander, and for the expressions of love and esteem in our sad bereavement by his final passing; and also for the floral tributes.

A meeting will be held on Wednesday, May 15, at Gilt Edge Park Hall, commencing at 8 p.m.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL ON THURSDAY & FRIDAY

The valuable shields and cups (which are held for one year) to be presented to winners in various group competitions in the School Musical Festival on Friday next are now on display in town, and from what we can gather, there will be strong competition as to the holders of these trophies from the long list of entries for the numerous events.

In addition to the trophies as shown above (original donations by Mr. W. Huntingford, Dr. Wallace, Dr. Courcier, Mr. R. Dunsmore, Mr. M. L. Foster, Mr. E. L. Cork and the Wainwright School Board) there have been added two more shields by the Women's Institute and Hardisty

ENTRY LISTS COVER WIDE AREA

School Board, as well as the silver cups by Mr. C. T. Lally and Mr. A. G. Smith. It should be noted that owing to the recent fire at Kinella schoolhouse the original trophy, the Dr. Courcier shield has been replaced by a valuable silver cup for that competition.

The first day, Thursday, (Open Festival Day) competition will commence at one o'clock and continue till about six p.m. The second day's proceedings (School Festival) will commence at 9 a.m. and contests in the day's programme will be run off as was shown in the time-table published last week.

In the evening a concert will be given, by all the winning contestants of the school festival, at which Mr. Vernon Barford, of Edmonton, will act as chairman, and the trophies and diplomas presented.

Throughout the day in the I.O.O.F. hall, the ladies of the local W.I. will serve hot tea to the folks from out of town, and these are permitted to bring their lunches and enjoy the refreshment privileges there, and this should prove a boon to teachers and mothers with small children from a distance and will no doubt be taken full advantage of during the day.

State Medicine Is Brought Nearer

OTTAWA — State medicine in Canada appears to be appreciably closer as the result of a conference of Provincial and Dominion health authorities held here.

When a member first began placing resolutions on the House of Commons order paper urging the Federal Government to experiment with "health units" and work forward to state medicine, he was looked upon as visionary, and won few supporting voices. But the depression has accentuated the need for such a step, and now, more as a result of stern necessity than as a deliberate policy the state has been compelled to intervene here and there and supply medical aid to those who would otherwise have to go without.

The conference of health authorities adopted the suggestion made by the Federal Minister of National Health, that a royal commission be appointed this summer to go into the whole question of state medicine. It is freely recognized that the co-operation of Provincial and municipal authorities would be necessary before such a scheme could possibly work, but the fact that seven provinces were represented at the gathering, and that enthusiastic support was in evidence, suggest that this co-operation will be available when the time comes.

The position of the private doctor, nurse and hospital has in many parts of the country been made impossible by the shortage of purchasing power in the hands of the general public, and if the municipalities had not provided aid, such areas would now largely be without medical services capable of caring for the sick and needy. Unfortunately there is no general policy of state aid, and the greatest variety of hit-and-miss methods and practices are in vogue. Those who believe in state medicine feel that this should gradually be supplanted by an organized system in which no matter what the financial status of an individual, he or she would be assured of proper medical care.

MRS. J. WELLS WINS CONGOLEUM RUG CONTEST

In the big contest for the congoleum rug given away on Saturday last at McLeod's furniture store, Mrs. J. C. Wells proved to be the lucky guesser of the sealed number on the beautiful rug.

The guess which this lady made was "164" while the actual number on the rug which had been placed under the seal by the makers was "165", no person making the correct guess.

Mr. F. E. McLeod wished to thank all those who placed a guess in this contest for the interest they displayed in the matter, which this year showed a large increase in numbers.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mrs. C. G. Steele, who passed away on May 10, 1915. Ever remembered.

Deep in our heart is a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.

Mrs. W. HUNTINGFORD.

Ball Boys Stage Show & Dance

For the benefit of the funds of the baseball club, a concert by the girls of the C.G.I.T. (which was practically a repetition of their former effort recently given in the I.O.O.F. hall) was staged in the theatre on Monday evening, and although the attendance was smaller than could have been wished, all were decided in their applause and encores were the order of the evening.

Taking the form of "an evening in a radio broadcasting station" the various numbers were put "over the mike" with a novel and enterprising zest, and Mr. K. T. Tully made an efficient station manager and announcer. His topical hits were well received too.

A splendid supper was served during the dance with which the affair was wound up, and the baseball club should profit nicely from the efforts put forth.

Picturization Of Famous Book

In the Paramount talkie "Ruggles of Red Gap" the local theatre will truly have a drawing card for Saturday evening next (only) owing to the musical festival on Thursday and Friday.

This picture with a cast headed by Chas. Laughton and Mary Boland, has a quality of fun-making which is almost supreme, and is full to the brim with laughs and merriment. In personality and story there is just about everything which the play-gers demand.

While in Paris, Ruggles wins Young's valet and takes him back to Red Gap, where Ruggles will plan to settle the matter with a butter. The valet is mistaken for a British colonel which causes embarrassment to Mrs. Ruggles, and after being fired as valet he opens a restaurant. He later announces his engagement to another lady-love amid a scene of great merriment.

Patrons should note that this picture will show on Saturday only of this week at matinee and evening performances.

Cattle Export to U.S. Cause of High Prices

Decision follows complaints that the recent export of cattle to the U.S. have resulted in substantial increases in prices by Calgary butchers.

CANADIAN GARDEN SERVICE

FLOWERS FOR SPECIAL PLACES

In selecting a list of Annual flowers attention must be paid of course, to time of blooming and color. Height should also be noted as a medium sized plant may be hidden by some bushy stocks or tall Cosmos. But these are only elemental points which every gardener of a few years experience notes automatically. There are other and finer distinctions. Certain shades blend well together and often a whole bed will be selected with this blending in mind. Of course for this sort of thing, all the plants must bloom during the same period. Fragrance should be taken into account, as there are some spicy things like Evening Scented Stock, Nicotiana, Mignonette, Sweet Sultan and Verbena, which while rather plain as plants fill the garden with a delightful incense, more especially in the evening. In shaded quarters, Tuberosa, rooted Begonias, Pansies, and wild flowers will do well. In fact, they prefer this location to any other. In partial shade, Clarkia, Annual Larkspur, Lupine, Nicotiana, Phlox and Verbena should be grown. On poor soil, Petaluma is a favorite as well as Alyssum, Sweet-scented Stocks, Lilium, Callipais, Sunflowers, Schizanthus, Marigolds, Petunias, and many others. These will also successfully resist dry weather. For cutting purposes, there is a long list to choose from but it should include Gypsophila (Baby's Breath) useful for making up bouquets. There are several hardy annuals which can be picked with long stems just before the bloom opens and dried for water bouquets. These include the Straw Flower, Statice, Acoronium, Rhodanthe and many others.

EARLY WORK WITH VEGETABLES

The soil in the vegetable garden should be worked to good tilth. To increase fertility well rotted manure should be dug in with a digging fork or if manure is not available a well balanced commercial fertilizer may be used. The following seeds may be sown early in the open: aubergines, beets, carrots, radish, lettuce, onions, parsnips, and peas; seeds to be sown in the open after danger from frost is over: beans, corn, melons, cucumbers, potatoes, pumpkin and squash; seeds to be started in hot-beds: cabbage, cauliflower, celery, tomatoes, peppers and egg plants. By spreading sowing of each early vegetable over a period of two to three weeks a larger harvesting season is obtained.

KEEP ADDING

Much of the real interest in gardening lies in trying something new. Of course it is not advisable to make the whole garden each spring, nor should one abandon completely all those old favorites which have done so well in the past, but without something entirely new each season, interest will be lost. In a special part of every seed catalogue will be listed the very latest creations in both flowers and vegetables. Certain flowers which were always double before now appear in a single type, or perhaps a new distinct color has been added. Giants have been dwarfed, like the new tiny Zinnias, or very much increased in height, added to something which a few years ago could only be secured in midgelet size. Practically all the leading flowers may now be secured in both doubles and singles and some of the latter, particularly in the Astras are very desirable.

CATALOGUE WILL HELP

A good seed catalogue will prove

Indispensable. Height of the flowers, times of blooming, whether they are suitable for such special purposes as edging, screening, cutting and fragrance are all mentioned and are vital facts in the laying out of a satisfactory garden. In the vegetable line the catalogue continues this useful service by listing different varieties under the heading of early, late and medium so that a succession of vegetables is possible right through the season. With unusual sorts, special directions are given in regard to care and preparation for the table.

THINK IT OVER!

Three years ago Mr. Abernethy had never heard of Major Douglas or of Social Credit; he was a high school principal and Revivalist leader.

Today he claims to have devised a plan for Alberta, a plan that is a cure-all for our economic ills; this is the goal toward which the economies of all times have been and are still struggling.

Major Douglas, founder of Social Credit, says such a scheme cannot be applied to Alberta alone.

Professor Elliott, of the U. of A. who has made a life study of economics, said before the Agricultural Committee of the Provincial Government that: The only way to raise $120,000,000 needed for Credit Certificates would be by raising $120,000,000 by additional taxes. A farmer with an income of $100 would receive $300 per year in certificates but would pay $480 as his share of the $120,000,000 tax.

Dean Wier also of the U. of A. said at the same time, the plan would be unconstitutional under Sec. 91 of the B.N.A. Act.

Mrs. Rogers, prominent Social Credit leader had no questions to ask nor remarks to make in reply to the two statements above, when the opportunity was given her at the time by the Committee.

Ardent Social Crediters:—Think this over carefully then ask yourself these questions.

1. Could it be actually put into practice in Alberta? Remember the overshadowing powers of the Federal Government and Supreme Courts.
2. Would it profit us? The $900 farmer finds Social Credit costing him $180 more than his 25¢ a month.
3. What chaos, bloodshed and horrors might follow the election of a Social Credit government that could not do a thing? — Athabasca Echo.

JUBILEE CELEBRATION

AT EDGEINGTON

The Edgerton Town Council arranged a full day programme for the Jubilee celebrations on Monday, May 6th.

At 10.30 a.m. the day school children met at the Edgerton hall and proceeded from there to the station where two special trees were planted in commemoration of their Majesty's Jubilee.

Short talks were given by prominent townsmen as well as songs and shows by the children, after which 50 trees were planted by the children on Main street. This is following out a plan inaugurated last year, a plan to beautify the streets and avenues of the town. Children's sports were held in the afternoon and to finish up he days proceedings the boys scouts gathered for a bon-fire and sing song.

The total value of bacon exported during January and February, 1935 was 28,370,600 pounds, an increase of 9,823,600 pounds over the shipments in January and February, 1934.

How Surgeons Keep Fit

Condensed from Popular Science Monthly by Frederic Danrau, M.D.

A few weeks ago I watched one of my colleagues perform a difficult brain operation. There was grave doubt as to whether the patient would recover. Throughout the operation, the surgeon was outwardly calm. But when the strain was over, he was almost in a state of collapse. I had to hold his glass for him while he drank tea water, and later he asked me to drive him home because he was afraid to handle his own car.

People who think that surgeons are cold-blooded creatures are mistaken. I have seen them bleed at a single slip of the knife may mean death to the patient causes great nervous tension. Due to the strain of operating daily under such tension, the life of the surgeon is notoriously short.

Again there are sudden emergencies for which the surgeon must be prepared. Recently in Paris, a woman, bleeding internally and near the point of death, was brought to the Rothschild Hospital. Only an immediate blood transfusion would save her life. When all those present were tested, it was found that only the blood of the chief surgeon could be used. Without hesitation, the doctor drained blood from his own veins for the transfusion. Then he operated on the patient and saved her life!

To be prepared for such emergencies as well as for the constant strain of the operating room, surgeons train like athletes to keep physically fit. They regulate their diet and their hours of sleep. A majority of them are total abstainers from alcohol. Many avoid the use of tobacco entirely. Some do not even touch coffee or tea. And all are particularly careful to obtain a good night's sleep.

"A tired surgeon is a poor risk for any patient." That is an epigram of the New York specialist, Dr. Abraham Wolbarsht. He makes it a point to spend the evening before a heavy day in the operating room reading light fiction or a detective story to relax his mind. Dr. Morris Levine, who has achieved results bordering upon the miraculous in his treatment of "hopeless" mastoid cases, lies on a couch and gazes for divine assistance before every operation. Dr. Lyons Hunt, famous New York plastic surgeon, closes himself in his room and takes a refreshing nap of five or ten minutes before he begins his work. The most curious preparation of all is made by another New York specialist. He always spends the evening before an operation at the movies. But he doesn't go to see the show. He sits in the theatre, where he will be quiet and undisturbed, and goes over in his mind each step of the operation.

To keep fit for the strain of the operating room, Dr. K. Winfield Ney, who recently demonstrated a remarkable new operation for the cure of epilepsy, regulate his life like clockwork. He rises at eight and is never known to be late at the hospital. His morning is spent in operating; his afternoon in seeing patients. Then he takes an hour's nap before dinner. The evening is passed in playing chess, bridge, or seeing a serious play. Four hours, from eleven at night to three in the morning, are devoted to reading and writing scientific literature. He has found that he is at his best on six hours' sleep; five at night, from three to eight, and one hour during the day. More sleep impairs his concentration.

Because it demands a coordination of rapid improvements, Dr. Ney practices trap shooting during much of his spare time. Also he trains his fingers for hours at a time by modelling clay, carving wood, and practicing sculpture. In addition, he finds relaxation in working with woods and tools in his home workshop.

Almost all surgeons are constantly seeking to increase the skill of their hands and their ability to co-ordinate brain and muscle. One surgeon of my acquaintance took up etching to develop more delicate control over his fingers. Several have learned to play the violin in order to increase their power with metal handles, such as Forb's Hawkes, noted for his remarkable operations upon the kidney, learned to play the piano as training for his fingers. To perfect himself in tying stitches, one Brooklyn, N.Y., surgeon spends part of each day in everyting his strings around a bedpost. In the operating room, he is noted for the speed with which he ties stitches in closing a wound.

Fencing is the method used by another surgeon to keep his eyes and muscles in perfect co-ordination. In addition, he plays musical instruments that require the use of both hands. For, whereas the average craftsman is skillful with either his right or left hand, most of the masters of the operating room are ambidextrous. I have seen surgeons working first with one hand and then the other, according to which one gave them the best conditions for cutting or sewing.

Performing operations upon animals for scientific research is another method by which the surgeon trains his hands to perform delicate tasks. In this work, the experimenter is often dealing with tiny glands and the slightest slip upsets the whole experiment. It is interesting to note that it was through such an experiment that Dr. Frederick Banting, of Toronto, Canada, discovered insulin, the gland extract which has aided thousands of sufferers from diabetes. This discovery is rated as one of the greatest in medicine.

More than a million operations a year are performed in the United States alone. In recent years, the life-saving record of surgery has been climbing steadily. Much of the credit for this must go to the infinite pains with which the surgeon prepares for his work and the unceasing efforts with which he seeks to increase his skill and technique.

PROCASTINATION

It has been said that most of our worries are about things which never happen. It could be said, with equal truth, that many lives are sacrificed each year upon the altar of procrastination.

Much criticism is heaped upon the medical profession for their failures. Because the members of the profession are human, they have faults and failings which, on occasion, provoke justifiable complaints.

The practitioners of medicine are not to blame, however, when those whom they have instructed and warned fail to accept their advice. Medical care cannot be forced upon people and if some man prefers to gamble, with his life as the stake, it is his responsibility solely.

Every year, quite a large number of deaths occur from appendicitis. There are two factors which account for many of these deaths. As both of these can be avoided, it is correct to say that a large percentage of the appendicitis deaths which now occur are preventable.

The first factor is the use of laxatives in the presence of abdominal pain. When there is a pain in the abdomen nothing should be taken by mouth and, above all else, never a laxative. Whatever causes the pain, no good is done by food or drink, and much harm may result. If the pain is due to an inflammation, such as appendicitis, then the laxative breaks down the rest, which is established by nature, and almost surely spreads the infection, possibly causing peritonitis. Pain which persists is usually dangerous; an ice-bag should be applied while waiting for the doctor.

The second available factor is delay in securing treatment. The time to operate must be decided upon by the doctor in charge of the case. Records from any hospital will show that the percentage of deaths rises in direct ratio to the interval between the onset of symptoms and admission to hospital.

Those people who cling to an appendix which they have been told should be removed will not all die of appendicitis. Many of them will, however, be rushed to hospital with an acute attack when the danger from operation is much greater than during quiescent period.

Why not be reasonable and pay attention to pains in the abdomen and to the advice of your doctor.

Rambling Round New York

Warm Sundays, the new zoo in Central Park is besieged by thousands. It is educational, no doubt, for human beings to make the rounds and look at caged animals packed up and down in their confining spaces, but it always seems a little cruel that their space is so limited. The sea lions are the only animals that seem really content to me, as they dive and bark and show off in their big pool of water.

Suburbanites of New York talk of gardens and seed catalogues at this time of year, and the flower show held at Grand Central Palace each year gives them new inspiration to dig and plant. When hot days arrive, suburbanites will get back at Manhattanites for all the kidding they took about delays in transportation during the winter. They'll ask them how they breathe stuffy Manhattan air 24 hours a day without collapsing!

Sub-let advertisements begin to appear in New York year end sections this time of year, when Manhattanites plan on getting out of

The house frock sketched is very satisfactory both as to appearance and workmanlike usefulness.

Its front yoke with center closing and softly becoming revers make the blouse part interesting and the short slashed sleeves allow plenty of arm motion. The panel in the skirt front ends in a pleat for ease and fullness and the large pockets are both ornamental and necessary. The back is plain in both waist and skirt and the simple belt completes the frock.

Experimental Farms News

VALUE OF SELECTION OF SEED POTATOES

During the recent years virus diseases have been given much attention and it has been found that the best way to eliminate them from the potato crop is to select healthy plants for seed purposes during the growing season. In this manner, the yield per acre has been increased and the type and quality of the potatoes have been improved. Several years ago, a system of seed potato certification was organized by the Division of Botany, of the Dominion Experimental Farms and is now conducted in every province of Canada. Before crops are certified they must pass careful inspections of the plants and of the tubers. The most important of these inspections is that given to the plants during the growing season. Only those crops that conform to rigid standards, in regard to freedom from disease and purity of variety, are certified for seed purposes. In this manner seed potatoes of very high standard are made available to potato growers.

In order to maintain high standards of seed, the growers have found it advisable to make careful selection each year of the healthy root stock plants for their founding stock. Before they dig the main crop, they carefully harvest the tubers from the most desirable plants. If any of these plants do not conform to the required standards in yield, type, etc., they are discarded. The selected tubers are given the best storage available. In planting these in the seed plot, advanced growers generally use the "tuber-unit" method, by which all the seed pieces from any one tuber are planted in sequence. This method assists greatly in more efficient roguing and in making better selections of the healthy plants. If the plant from one seed piece of any tuber does not conform to the required standards in freedom from diseases, type, etc., every plant from that tuber is rogued out and discarded.

The selection of plants and of tubers has been conducted, according to this method, by the Dominion Seed Potato Certification Service in British Columbia. The results obtained with several varieties have demonstrated that a worthwhile increase in yield is obtained by proper selection of plants and of tubers for seed purposes.

As a result of the selection of plants and tubers over a three year period, with thirty samples received from growers for testing in the experimental plot, the average yield was increased by one half ton per acre.

In selecting, the grower should become familiar with the best type of plants, as well as of the tuber, of the variety he is growing. By continually selecting this most desirable type he will eventually develop a good uniform strain. This is undoubtedly the best method of maintaining a high standard of seed potatoes.

THE MENACE OF THE HOUSE FLY

Different times, different manners! In medieval days when the black death, typhus, small pox, and other virulent plagues were taken as a matter of course, the phrase, "He would not kill a fly" was invested as a very high compliment to personal goodness. Today, the person who would not kill a fly is looked upon merely as ignorant. The house fly is world-wide in distribution and is notorious for the part it plays in the dissemination of such dangerous diseases as typhoid, infantile diarrhoea, tuberculosis, cholera, dysentery, and others. It breeds in filth of the most objectionable kind, and yet it is tolerated in many homes, and public eating places. The fly is a menace to the public health owing to its habit of passing directly from putrid filth to human food, carrying with it bacteria and other organisms and particles of decomposing organic matter on its hairy body, legs, sticky feet, and mouth-parts. Under the microscope, the house fly is also a conveyor of food in its excreta and regurgitated saliva (fly specks).

Several generations of house flies develop during the warm months of the year, says the Dominion Entomological, the number varying with the character of the season. The flies are most numerous in summer and early autumn but diminish rapidly with the advent of cold weather. The most effective and desirable method of controlling house flies undoubtedly consists in eliminating or reducing their breeding places to a minimum by properly treating or disposing of such materials as manure and garbage. Fresh horse manure is a prolific source of house fly production and this material is probably responsible for the majority of flies in rural sections. In the cities, where horses have been largely replaced in favor of mechanical transport, garbage is an important factor in fly production. To be effective, control measures directed against their breeding places should be organized on a community basis, supported by a public well-informed on the menace of the house fly to health and the means by which it may be combated. One neglected manure heap or garbage dump is often sufficient to infest a whole neighborhood, and it is necessary therefore to enlist the active co-operation of the whole community.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh (N.C.) Times, says: "Did you ever stop to think what a difference it would make if the non-advertiser gave more thought to not how much it costs to advertise, but how much it costs NOT to advertise?"

"I dare say that if only ten per cent of the number of non-advertisers in this great country could be made to see in round dollars the stupendous amount lost to their business through failure to advertise, the present facilities of every newspaper in North America would be distressingly inadequate to care for the tremendous increase in volume of advertising as a consequence. "Wouldn't it be fine if newspapers could secure the services of an organization that could make available these 'Dollars Lost Facts' for non-advertisers? "Anyway, it's worth thinking about, Mr. Merchant."

The FAMILY DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES M.D.

GETTING "FRESH AIR"

The modern automobile may be called the universal convenience for out-door travel. It is rare to find an American householder that does not possess some sort of a family car.

I rode in my sedan about thirty-five miles yesterday afternoon. It was sunny and warm—a perfect day; I wanted—needed—air and sunshine; I, like multiplied thousands, had been housed the week before. The question is, how much air and sunshine did I obtain?

In a very "sketchy" ride over the hills and through country lanes, I was not actually in the glorious sunshine over ten minutes! Seated on the cushions, I did not get ten whole minutes of physical exercise—a solemn fact.

I am forced to confess—the closed automobile is worth precious little as an instrument for gathering sunshine and exercise for the man who needs both. . . . Thrice more benefit comes to the health-tourist who is compelled to get out by the side of the highway and match up a punctured tire or a "blow-out." He gets the sunshine and exercise.

An auto trip over mountain roads, with camping out at nights, eating lunches broiled over a chunk-fire in the great out-doors, a trip lasting a week or two, is of immense benefit for recuperation; but how very few are so situated that they may go to that extent?

Let me word this exactly: I got more sunshine and exercise in my back yard one afternoon with my garden hose—than I would get in an entire Sunday afternoon's auto touring, and did it in twenty minutes. I mention this to show how easy, effective and cheap one can obtain such absolute essentials to life and health as sunshine, air and good exercise. The husband may reach for it and take without cost, while the idler merely "gets by" in his self-deception.

THE BOOK

the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Testaments

by BRUCE BARTON

TEN FAMOUS WOMEN

The same letter which invited ten thousand preachers to name the ten greatest men in the Bible asked also for a list of ten famous women. Seventy-four names received votes, and the following ten are selected from among the highest, and are arranged not in the order of their popularity but in their chronological sequence.

1. Eve, "the mother of all living."
2. Ruth (who had the highest vote in the Bible).
3. Hannah, the devoted mother.
4. The one woman whom the Bible calls great.
5. Esther, the beautiful queen.
6. Mary, the mother of Jesus (for whom practically every vote was cast).
7. Mary of Magdala.
8. The Babylonian Sufferer.
9. The woman of Samaria.
10. The widow who gave the mite.

Eve: Every ancient people has its own legend of the creation of the first man and woman, and in almost every story the woman gets the worst of it. It is only fair to remember this. Some man (Moses or another) is her biographer.

When the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also to her husband.

So much for the Eve whom everybody knows, the Eve of the Garden and the transgression. We shall not linger with her. It is with Eve the girl with an unhappy memory and the swift disillusionment going forth with the young man she loved and making a home "east of Eden," whom we should like to know better.

There in the backwoods is heard the lullaby of this primitive Madonna, singing the song that all mothers have sung:

"I have gotten a man From the Lord."

MUZZLING PUBLICITY

The Nazi rule in Germany has ordered all religious publications suppressed and henceforth forbidden. Our democratic indignation rises against any such act against the freedom of the people and our sympathy for the German nation under the tyranny of dictatorship.

But are we much better off than they? The U.F.A. government in its closing hours of its LAST session forced through a muzzling act to suppress free reports of civil actions in Alberta.

When the law hides behind its majesty, and when religion hides behind its sanctity, we have cause for suspicion.

This quotation exactly indicates the action of the U.F.A. government. Because the late Premier Brownlee and Hon. McPherson were revealed to the public in civil actions as a pair of immoral men and the daily papers published the filthy details as given in evidence, the Government has shown its temper by prohibiting the publication of any civil action and its vindictiveness is reflected in enormous fines on owners, editors, publishers and even newsmen who sell any paper containing such reports.

Goodness knows the law of libel and slander in the Criminal Code of Canada was severe enough to cover any phase of this. The Provincial Government enacting a separate code.

Had Messrs Brownlee and McPherson not got caught in the toils of their own passions there would never have been an act of this kind passed and this last drying kick of a vindictive Government is regarded by all lovers of freedom as quite on a par with the Nazi Hitlerism of Germany.

IT MIGHT WORK

Perhaps after all Will Rogers' plan of thinning out the ranks of those in relief is not too bad. It is this: When anyone is dissatisfied with the country or its conditions, why, just ship him back to where he came from. The only stipulation being that he won't return. You can not blame people for being home-sick, and railway and steamship fare is cheaper than relief. So, when he develops an acute case of nostalgia, just buy him a ticket and hand him his bag. Rogers says there are 60,000 Philippians in California who want to go back to their native islands, so why not let them go? The plan might work successfully here in Canada with a lot of those who are shouting loudest about the advantages of living under the Soviet Union in preference to our system.

At Palmer, in the heart of the Mathias valley, the government has laid out 200 plots of 40 acres each. Before the first contingent of settlers arrives, these plots will be numbered and spacious tents will be erected on them.

As the colonists step from the train at Palmer they will draw numbers from a hat. As each draws a number he and his family will be instructed how to reach the designated timber tract out of which the future livelihood of that family must be carved by axe and plow.

Four hundred men from northwest Arkansas relief camps will be brought to Alaska with the first contingent of settlers to help clear the land. With the menfolk among the colonists these woodsmen will make the forests ring with their axes bladed to operate tractor-driven plows to turn the virgin soil.

Some of them will begin immediately to build log houses for the settlers.

The houses must be built by October. So must a school house, which will also be the community's social centre in the long winter months when the sun shines only 200 minutes a day.

So must a cannery, a garage and a workshop be erected in the wilderness before October 15, when the 400 transient camp workmen will sail back to the United States, leaving the colonists to face alone the hardships of their first winter under the aurora borealis.

Through the winter the colonists will be able to do little except attend their cows, one of which will be assigned to each family. In the spring, however, they will be expected to produce nearly a million dollars worth of farm products. This is important.

Merchants in Seward, Anchorage, Matanuska and Fairbanks annually buy a million dollars worth of foodstuffs from Canada and the United States. When the present colonization project was conceived last year, those merchants declared their readiness to purchase produce of the Matanuska valley if they could be sure of receiving enough for their retail needs.

Not to be discounted are declarations from military observers who declare that colonization will help build Alaskan defenses in any invasion of U.S. from the east.

Recipients of King's Silver Jubilee Medal

His Majesty King George V. has personally worked out the lists upon which some few thousand of his 10,000,000 Canadian subjects are to receive the silver medals commemorating his silver jubilee.

The basis of the King's list as revealed April 30th, a dispatch to Toronto says, is as follows:

The archbishop and bishops of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches in Canada.

The moderator of the Presbyterian church of Canada, the head of the United Church and of the Baptist church, and all ecclesiastical officers in these denominations exercising jurisdiction equivalent to that of a Bishop.

The Papal legate in Canada. Certain war veterans.

Certain persons who have attended the Mayors of all towns and cities of over 5,000 population.

The chief of police in all towns and cities of over 5,000 population.

The matrons and superintendents of all hospitals.

Certain workers in other philanthropic and patriotic societies.

Members of the Federal Civil Service with 30 years or more in the service to their credit.

Certain members of the Canadian military and naval forces.

Surviving members of His Majesty's Privy Council for Canada.

Members of the Canadian Senate and their wives.

Members of the House of Commons and their wives.

Members of the judiciary upon a basis not definitely settled.

The president of the Canadian Press.

The scheme has been made possible through the generosity of L. MacKinnon and Senator Patrick Burns, who have donated 390 acres extending from the city limits at Ogden, 2½ miles eastward along the Strathmore highway. The land is valued at about $100 per acre.

Sectional houses, 16 by 28, are being erected for families up to four in number, and there will be two houses for larger families. Each will be set in one acre of ground for garden purposes. There will be 60 acres of community pasture with running spring water and a 60 acre community field for greenfeed; also community stables for milk cows, where each owner will attend to his own animals. 160 acres is being plowed, disced and dragged, any portion of which will be assigned to tenants on application. There will be two community teams for the tenants to use in doing their own cultivation.

All the families will be kept on Provincial relief until they are self-supporting.

Production, apart from feed, will consist of milk, butter, eggs, vegetables, the surplus of which will be acquired by the Alberta Relief Commission, so that it will not enter into competition with other interests.

In the initial stages of the enterprise the families will receive Provincial relief as formerly, food being strictly in accordance with the advisory committee's schedules as to quantities regardless of current prices.

Crop Report Shows General Seed'g Late

Farming operations have been delayed in many parts of the Dominion by unpropitious weather. In the Prairie Provinces it is one to two weeks late and in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces it is somewhat backward. In Ontario on the other hand the season is about ten days earlier than usual and farming operations in Alberta has hardly been commenced. While initial moisture conditions generally are ample, sub-soil moisture reserves are meagre over large areas. Fall wheat wintered well in British Columbia and sowing of spring grains is 50 per cent completed. Germination, however, has been slow and growth is backward.

Alberta Seeding is not likely to be general until May 10th. The seed bed is in good condition and there is ample top soil moisture but little reserve moisture in the subsoil. The late season is likely to result in a decrease in wheat acreage and a corresponding increase in the acreage of coarse grains. Pastures need warmth. Sugar beet seeding is backward.

Saskatchewan Seeding is just commencing in the north but is becoming general in other districts. Initial moisture conditions are fairly good but there are little reserves over large areas of the province from Saskatchewan south.

Dust storms to date have not been serious. Most districts report that the acreage to be sown to wheat will be lowered particularly in the southern areas, where farmers are handicapped by shortage of seed and horse power.

Manitoba Seeding has commenced in practically all districts and will be general this week. Early moisture conditions are favorable but subsoil reserves are meagre in southwestern areas. There has been but little soil drifting. Indications point to a reduced wheat acreage particularly in the southwest, due to poor condition of horses and shortage of seed.

Wainwright and district mourn the loss of an old and respected resident in the person of Mrs. Chas. Isted who died on May 10th in Edmonton following a serious illness. In addition to the husband, two daughters and three sons and a sister Mrs. W. Gano of Wainwright are left to mourn her passing.

The young two and one-half year old son of Mr. W. Lundy narrowly escaped death last week when he fell down a dry 16-ft. well and only 18 inches in diameter. His rescue was accomplished by a gang of men tunnelling in to him from the side of the well.

Mr. L. Larrabee is now much improved in health and has sufficiently recovered strength to take exercise.

The sinking of the big ocean liner, the Lusitania, by German torpedoes on Friday last sent Mr. Colin Cattle to his death, and Wainwright now mourns the loss of a citizen of whom she was proud.

We are not responsible for opinions expressed by our correspondents.

The Editor:

Dear Sir—Permit one who is approaching the allotted span to make an observation on the present menace of Social Credit.
Looking backward is often salutary, for as Croce says "all history is present history."

The modern method for students of finance is to rush in where angels fear to tread, and I, for one, see a great danger if the delicate mechanism of a country's trade relationship with the world at large is ruthlessly upset.

The Roman Empire is a great study for us today. It fell down as a result of many lines for all time. Roman law, on which is based our modern jurisprudence; Roman roads, which after the wear and tear of centuries show evidence of skilful engineering; Roman architecture still studied in our schools today; Roman language, the mother of our own.

Such peoples as the Romans had a great philosophy and were famous for their words of wisdom, used in our own day as current phrases. Of these "ex nihilo fit" (out of nothing is made) is an axiom for the study groups of the $25 a month scheme.
Every sane person knows we'll have to get it by one method only—taxation to the hilt.

Thanking you for your solid sense in commenting on its dangers.
Yours faithfully,
Imperialist.

Adams of this world? Elizabeth, nicknamed Puck, who is the heroine of this novel, believed she did. Her husband was a young Dutch engineer, and together they faced the world in an alliance which was to be as strong and binding in its guarantee of mutual freedom as in its restraint. Puck is typical of the contemporary woman in marriage. She is faced with the dilemma of choosing a home and family on the one hand, or a career on the other. She chooses the career, only to question in the end whether it is completely satisfying. The setting of the novel is partly Dutch and partly Parisian; one of the many shifting back grounds in an intimate picture of the Kingdom of Haute Couture, where Puck succeeds in gaining a partnership in the fantastic Maison Panatelli where Parisian fashions are created.
Throughout, the author's genius for genuine, full-flavored character portrayal is the great charm of the novel. Here are two people whose problems and joys become of the utmost importance to the reader, whose personalities are the best work of this famous Dutch writer.

SLUMBERING GOLD

by Aubrey Boyd

SYNOPSIS: Young Ed Maitland, son of a New England seafaring family, and the hardened gambler, Speed Malone, meet on a trip north to the Yukon gold field in '97, when word of the rich ore there first came down the Pacific coast. Maitland was determined to win back his lost fortune before he returned home. The two men became partners, Speed promising not to get tangled with the law if he could help it, and to clear out from the partnership if he did. Frechly, the fisherman whose smack took the two men north; Lucky Rose, the beautiful girl who had given a ring to Maitland as a keepsake; Fallon, camp leader, resentful of Rose's attention to Maitland; Stedner, the money lender; young Pete and his drunken partner Bill Owens; Brent, old time prospector; Garnet, well-to-do traveler who hired Maitland and Speed to take his things over the mountains—these are the principal figures in the story. Malone, Maitland and Garnet hauled part of his stuff from the canvas camp on the Skagway beach over the trail to the camp in the hills called Liasville. Beyond the trail was almost impassable. Speed broke up a shell game and he and Fallon repaired over closing the trail for repairs. Now go on with the story.

Speed waited another instant to watch the door. The foremost of the marsh's men rushed into view a thought sooner than he had counted on. Too soon for Lefty, anyway; the door was still shut.

Speed raised the gun for a shot that would drive them away from it. The revolver spat flame with a stunning roar...

For a priceless second, he stood dazed and half-blinded, stumbling to keep his balance and conscious of no more than the fact that he was alive. A numbing center in his arm and hand. As the haze cleared he realized that the gun had blown to pieces. Probably frost in the barrel.

... he should have warned it on the lantern before he left Steiner's tent.

And in that tick of doom, the pack was on him. The last thing he knew was the twisting twist he gave his body so as to land on his shoulder and a flare of fire in his head. Then the snow went black.

He was still on his shoulder when he became conscious again, but his hands were trussed behind him with a rope; his ankles were bound, he was gagged and lying on dry ground.

Gradually a murmur of low voices in the tent became articulate. He recognized Fallon's and lay motionless.

... so we didn't find the kid through the winter till Chik Holter located a camp on the Teelin a ways above where we camped on the Leveas. An outfit was cuttin' timber there for a raft, and Pete had a job cookin' for them. Holter picked up the mare's tail headin' west, alone. Picked it up and lost it.

"How?" another voice inquired.

"The blizzard, I reckon. But I figured the kid was making for the coast. We had to come down for some gear anyway, and we'll head Pete off here at the same time."

Speed's ear caught sharply at some hidden implication in the man's voice. The other voice murmured an interruption. "Seems to me like your prisoner's ears is awake."

"I'm speakin' to him," growled Fallon. "He likely knows plenty. It always looked to me like he had somethin' figured about Pete, and about Owens too."

"Well, if he won't explain himself, it'll be tough. He shot and killed a man in this camp, and was charged legal. He busted jail, stole a gun, and would have done plenty more if the gun had been good. He ain't a Canadian. We tell the 'mounties' we don't figure they'd choose a man of his character to run their mail. We suspect he stole it; he was seen gamblin' in a point with the mail in his pocket."

Through this talk, Speed's mind began shutting swiftly, trying to weave the full pattern of what it implied. The picture that began to emerge made him writhe at his bonds and at the gag in his mouth.

"The Golden Pans" at Skagway, under the protection of Soapy Smith, was a lathering vortex of carnival. It had a slick and apaculous floor lit by hanging lamps which depended from the crossbeams of the lumber roof. A piano, a banjo, and accordion were in the swing of what sounded like a musical steeplechase. But they made a spirited noise, and served to indicate that the romping riot on the dance floor was socially intended.

In attire, the crowd was variously informal, mixing corduroy, rough flannel and heavy miners' boots with the "store clothes" of the newcomers. The bar had its own supporters, who somehow remained audible. In their rumble of talk there were echoes of a rumor that a dangerous gunman had broken jail and tried to shoot up the camp.

In the tumult no one, therefore, immediately noticed that a group of armed men had entered, pushing before them a halcyon captive whose hands were tied behind his back. The leader of the posse commanded attention by the simple means of sending a bullet into the rafters.

"Where's Soapy Smith?" Fallon demanded in a voice that made the quiet absolute.

No one answered, or seemed to know. One glance at the posse and the prisoner had sent through the crowd, drunk and sober, an electric wave of what was impending. There was a low drone and buzz of excitement. They pressed in for a closer view of the prisoner, who was looking at the rafters.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said Fallon, "the character of this murderous desperado is known to ever miser who was on the trail in the first stampede of '97. He returns with erroneous ideas of 'civilized' the camp. Jailed for murder and mail robbery, he breaks jail, steals a gun and is the cause not only of promiscuous bloodshed, but of holes being shot in your tent roofs. We've brung him here because this roof has a strong crossbeam. With your kind attention, this ceremony will take about three minutes."

As the crowd looked on in dead silence, Speed was pulled across the floor to the further end of the dancing space, near the orchestra, where he was lifted to a table under one of the traverse roof beams. Standing there, his feet were quickly bound. One of the posse expertly fashioned a halter loop with nine winds around the shank of a stout pack line; the other end was thrown over the beam, and the noose fitted to the captive's neck, with the hondo against his ear.

Speed watched these preparations with apparent resignation. His roving glance ready to read him clear. "Still figurin' a play?" his captor taunted.

"Yes," said Speed. "One. They say a man's last look sees clear. Fallon, I ain't never tried to figure what lies over the line. If that's so, maybe you don't check me out complete. If you frame a deal against the boy, my partner, or lay hands on Pete, by God, I'll follow you—dead!"

"Damn it, Fallon," said an old miner. "I've seen men hung before, but never in your cold-blooded style. At least they're given the offer of a last drink or a smoke. Why don't you do it regular?"

Some of the old-timers voiced approval of that.

"All right," Fallon growled. "You can ask him. I'm damned if I will."

The man put the question.

"If it's a choice," said Speed, "I'd like to roll a cigarette. I've got the makin'."

His hands were untied and the bartender told to "Bring a glass of the

With a terrific driving smash to the jaw he sent Fallon spinning.

special, Soapy!

Gratefully flexing his wrists, Speed rolled a cigarette and was lighting it, when the drink arrived in a well-filled tumbler. "I take this kind, Soapy," he said, "but I never liked to drink alone. You can use my name freely in urgin' drinks on the house. The marshal has my war."

This sentiment was most favorably received by a number of the revelers whose thirst had outlasted their means. The discovery that the condemned man's credit was still good with Soapy created a generally good impression. Fallon gnawed his cheek. Curious newcomers were jamming in through the doorway, and Speed paused with the glass half-drained, at sight of one of them. Lefty, wearing a look of strongly mingled triumph and discomfiture, answered his stare by touching one bulge in the side of his coat and another in his pocket. Speed resumed his drink with a twisted grimace. So Lefty had his guns and the mail. The money would have been safer in the marshal's office. With the deft trick of his kind of worming through crowds the dip drew nearer. The forward press of the crowd had brought Rose nearer too. Speed met her clouded eyes again in a long study, as he emptied the glass and lowered it.

Fallon jerked it from his hand. "Any other little thing you'd like?" he inquired sardonically.

"They's one other thing," acknowledged Speed, still looking at Rose. "I ain't heard no music for some time. If the lady will play a song while I finish this cigarette."

Fallon wheeled, but Rose did not see his scowl.

A chord as clean and sweet as the tinkling of a wind instrument floated through a desert canyon floor from the strings under her touch, and shed an almost instant full on the crowd. Then her voice dissolved into the music—a clear, exultant contrast, plaintive, strong and deep, like the shore wash that sounded through it, sustaining the rhythmic lapses of the song.

In that beguiling, fluently riding spell of sound, the prisoner forgot everything apparently, but the singer's magic. But his eyes drifted to Lefty's with a sidelong glance at the accordion which dangled in the hands of its owner in the orchestra. Fallon, watching Rose and waiting for the end of her song, did not notice the invisible prompting. Eyes and wits less sharp than Lefty's would neither have perceived the look nor interpreted it, but the dip quietly detached the instrument from the listless fingers, and before he was aware of what had happened, tossed it to Speed. The pass was hardly observed before Speed had chimed the accordion with the closing bar of the song.

She looked up in wonder, but continued playing an accompaniment as the accordion repeated her melody. The sudden unexpectedness of the gesture took the crowd's breath no less than the perfect chording of the two instruments. He hured Rose's song into a lighter, brisk measure which she instinctively matched with the guitar until the melody itself was subtly changed.

Here was dance music such as few camps have heard, played by two artists who had music in their hearts and fingers. And as Speed swayed slightly with the playing, his eyes evading the smoke that curled up from the shortening cigarette butt, his feet were just visibly weaving (as it seemed, to the infection of his own music, but with a craft, studied strain against the rope. "Come on boys," he chanted suddenly. "Take your partners!"

The crowd was almost swept off its feet. In another moment the miracle might have been done. Lefty with a gaze of awed admiration, caught the meaning of Speed's strategy.

But Fallon came alive with a roaring curse.

"I'll make you dance, you jigger!"

He made a stride for the table to kick it over.

The kick however, was not completed. The crowd had buckled and swayed inward from the door, cleared apart by a powerful pair of shoulders, and by a dark, youthful battling head which Speed had never hoped to see again. It was Maitland.

There was a sharp crack of fire against bone, and Fallon was stiffened to his toes by a terrific driving smash to the jaw.

He rocked and went backward, but saved himself from falling by lurching into the piano keys with a loud discord.

To the crowd it was like a gong. A lynching was one thing; this was something more; the challenge faced their blood with a strong incantation. The night had a head of steam.

Fallon shook his head grggly. A movement of one hand to his belt brought a roar of protest from the crowd—on their own account no less than that of fair play. But Fallon had no intention of shooting. He pushed the gun light in the holster, and bracing himself against the piano, leaped when they met sounded like the impact of two bulls. Both men were magnificently strong, and toughened by the snow trails, though weight and natural experience were in Fallon's favor. He drove in a pounding barrage of body punches. Maitland closed in, trying to smother the assault, but taking moonshine in a thrashing rain of jack-hammer blows to the head and body. The instinctive balance that a sailor learns on heaving decks must have steadied him now; he thrust back of a sudden, and Fallon's foot, less sure of the glassy floor, slipped a little. The boy lashed up with a shot left and cut the other's upper lip, and then drove home a full-shouldered right, as Fallon's head snapped back. He came back with a spring that tore through Maitland's guard by sheer weight and fury. They slipped and came up in a swaying grapple.

When the children come home from school bringing friends with them, the housewife's skill and time are taxed to keep an adequate supply of food on hand.

Here are cookies as nourishing as they are tempting-spry, fruity. And the cake is one of those delicious fruit loaves that would improve with age if you could manage to keep any of it for more than a few days.

Refrigerator Fruit Cakes

1 (9 oz.) package dry mince meat and 1/2 cup water, boiled almost dry.

One-third cup butter shortening

1 cup sugar

1 egg

3 cups flour

3 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 cup milk

Break mince meat into pieces, add cold water, place over heat and stir until all lumps are thoroughly broken up. Bring to a brisk boil; continue boiling for three minutes, or until mixture is practically dry. Allow to cool. Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and beat vigorously. Sift flour once, measure, add soda and cream of tartar and sift again. Fold in citron and cooled mince meat. Pour into greased loaf pan (4 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches). Bake 1 1/2 hours in slow oven (300 degrees F.).

Chocolate Junket With Chopped Nuts and Whipped Cream

4 tablespoons Chocolate Junket Powder
1 pint milk
1/4 cup whipping cream
1/4 cup sugar
Chopped walnuts
Green maraschino cherries
Make chocolate junket according to directions on package. Chill in refrigerator. When ready to serve, whip and add sugar, mixing well. Place on dishes of junket, and sprinkle chopped nuts over it. A green maraschino cherry adds color to the topping.

1/4 cup ham or bacon drippings
Few slices onion

2 cups boiling water or 1 cup water and 1 cup strained tomatoes
Pound flour into meat with wooden potato masher or edge of heavy plate. Heat the fat. Brown the meat on each side in it. Add onion, green pepper, boiling water and tomatoes. Cover closely. Simmer two hours. This may be cooked in a casserole in the oven. Other vegetables may be added if desired.

Thoughts & Things

The business of living, when boiled down and all the froth skimmed off, is just a matter of thinking.

Each of us is continually thinking ideas of our own and swapping them for the ideas of others. If there is a famine of outside ideas we shivel up ourselves. Children with "nobody to play with" are unhappy and unmanageable.

From thinking with our heads to doing with our hands is but a little step and then our thoughts become things.

The originator of an idea is not much better off than before he originated it till he gets some one else to absorb it and enjoy it and benefit by it.

The man or woman surrounded by better thoughts and things but who pays not the slightest attention to them is not much better off than the one with "nobody to play with."

The advertisements in real newspapers are thoughts — telling you about the things that other men and women have created for your use. Read the ads. They are the voices from hundreds of thousands of looms, shops, foundries, studios, laboratories, where millions of minds are turning pleasant thoughts into worth-while things for you and your family.

EARTH'S NEW GOVERNMENT WHAT FORM

Men of today who are responsible for directing the affairs of the present government of each of the nations find the task a very difficult and trying one. From the least to the greatest of the nations of the world, there is not one in which the people are content, happy and thoroughly at ease. Some say that this is not one in which the people are content, happy and thoroughly at ease. Some say that this is just history repeating itself; others blame the World War. What is the truth?

Jehovah has been compassionate, mercifully gracious, and long suffering with man. Such a characteristic of him. He has permitted man to have a long period of time in which to put forth his best endeavors to build for himself a desirable government. In that period of many centuries man has not tried only one form of government; he has tried many forms. The history of each form of government has been recorded. No people can read that history with real satisfaction. Disappointment has marked every period of man's experience with these various forms of government. The time has now come for thoughtful persons to calmly consider the history of the nations during the past twenty-five centuries in particular and learn therefrom lessons of great benefit.

Amidst all the dreadful experiences of time the reverential mind can discern the gracious hand of God holding before man the truth, that he might have opportunity to learn and profit therefrom. For centuries there has been placed before the people of so-called "Christendom" the great truth: "Blessed is the nation whose God is Jehovah." (Ps. 33:13, A.R.V.) Even when all these nations have disregarded that great truth God has continued to manifest his loving-kindness and long-suffering toward them, abiding his own good time when he will lift the people out of their mire. When the course of the people has been such as to warrant their destruction the great Jehovah God has shown compassion and mercy toward them. Now it is manifest that his due time has come when his purposes shall be more plainly put before the people, that they may understand how a righteous government is to be erected on the earth for them.

There are three primary classes into which may be divided all the governments which man has attempted to establish. Where the supreme political control is in the hand of a single individual, that form of government is called a monarchy. Where the supreme political power is vested in a few, that government is called an aristocracy. Where the supreme power of control is in the hands of the populace, that government is called a democracy. When a monarchy is corrupt, it is called a tyranny. When aristocracy is corrupt that government is called oligarchy. Where a democracy is corrupt, the government is designated as a mobocracy. Monarchies are either absolute or limited. The power of an absolute monarchy is vested in and exercised by one supreme ruler. A limited monarchy uses as a fundamental law or constitution which limits the power and authority of the chief ruler and grants a portion thereof to the citizens. A monarchy is either one of heredity or an elective government. A democracy is either direct or indirect. Where the people elect their representatives who form the governing power, such government is designated an indirect democracy or a republic. A direct democracy is a government in which all the people have some voice in the enactment and enforcement of the laws. Man has tried all these forms.

Looking over the history of the nations whose governments have been either that of a monarchy, an aristocracy or a democracy, not one has been found to be entirely satisfactory to the people. The history of every nation shows that it has been a struggle between the classes. It has been a contest between the exploiting and the exploited. As a general rule, the class smaller in number has ruled and oppressed the class greater in number. These struggles have resulted in many revolutions, great suffering, and much bloodshed. Out of these struggles have developed the various theories or forms of government called radical, including communism, socialism, the soviet, and bolshevism. The birth of these has been due to the struggles of the oppressed.

Communism advocates a sharing of all things in common, aiming at the abolition of private ownership of property and at holding all property for the benefit of the community. Socialism holds that the means of production and distribution of the wealth of the nations are the collective property of the workers, who by their efforts produce that property while the goods which are to be consumed become the private property of the individual workers. Such government would do away with the aristocratic class.

Out of the World War was born the soviet government of Russia. Peoples of that nation had long suffered under a monarchy that bordered closely upon a tyranny. The war furnished the opportunity to overthrow the monarchy. "Soviet" really means council or harmony. The Soviet government, however, has been anything but harmonious. The government is made up of councils of working men and soldiers called deputies. There are various councils and one supreme council. The soviet rule is called an organized form of dictatorship of the proletariat, but this government denies the right of suffrage to certain classes. The soviet government has not been a success, and never can be, and is far from being satisfactory to the people who have tried it. As in all other forms of government where the people are supposed to have a voice, the aristocratic and party men dominate the various councils, and therefore the government has presented no advantages over any other government. In fact, bolshevism has resulted in great suffering of the people and it is feared by many of the other nations and governments of the earth.

Every form of government man has tried, whether that be monarchy, aristocracy, democracy, republic or socialism, has been unsatisfactory. In all these forms of government there have been many men who have endeavored to establish a just and equitable rule, but have failed. Suppose the World War had made it possible to establish democracy in all the nations. Would that democracy have succeeded and been satisfactory to the people? It would have been impossible for it to succeed and be entirely satisfactory. The demagogue and the professional politician would have done as they have always done: put the party interests and private interests above the common welfare. No stronger proof is needed to support that conclusion than the present-day conditions prevailing in the government of the United States of America. That government is more nearly an ideal democracy than any other nation that has ever existed on earth; and yet it is plainly stated by many who are high in authority, and it is well known by the people in general, that selfish men dominate and control. The general welfare of all the people is secondary, while selfish and favored interests are given chief advantage. The United States of America has been the most favored, and has existed under the most favorable conditions, of any nation under the sun. Within the period of existence there have been many really noble men who have given their best efforts to establish a desirable government. After more than one hundred and fifty years' experience that government is found to be entirely unsatisfactory to the rank and file of the people.

Let it be conceded that honest men in every nation have done their best to erect a satisfactory government. It must also be admitted that they have failed. If, after twenty-five centuries of honest endeavor and strenuous effort on the part of the noblest of men to establish a desirable government, dissatisfaction and failure are the result, is it not time for sober-minded persons to calmly and dispassionately seek to know the real reason why? Why are there discontent, distress and perplexity in every nation? Why has no people been able to establish an ideal and satisfactory government?

There are two reasons: (1) The invisible ruler of all the nations of the world is evil, and his influence over the visible rulers has been and is evil. (2) Man himself is imperfect and therefore susceptible to evil influences. Imperfect men under such conditions could not possibly establish a righteous government.

It follows therefore that a righteous and ideal government can exist the supreme and unlimited power must be vested in and exercised by one who is just, wise, and wholly unselfish, and that power must be exercised for the general welfare of all and for the special interests of no class. This principle cannot be successfully gained by an honest man. Such a government is what the people have desired for centuries. Such a righteous government is exactly the kind of government that God long ago promised to establish for man and which he is now beginning to establish for the benefit of man. He will remove all power from the invisible evil ruler so that evil cannot any more influence man while he is striving to reach an ideal condition. Both the invisible and the visible influence of God's government upon man will be for good.

What form of government will then control the peoples of earth? That government will be a pure theocracy. For centuries the whole creation has groaned and suffered in pain, waiting for the manifestation of that government. (Rom. 8:19) Now the time has come for its establishment, and both the rulers and the ruled of the earth should learn the truth and rejoice. What is said here against the various forms of government is not said with a view to provoking revolution, of course, but is said that thoughtful men and women might consider the only way that leads to a condition of righteousness, peace and happiness. Such a desirable condition of righteousness, peace and happiness could never have been enjoyed under a monarchy, aristocracy, democracy, communism, socialism, or sovietism, or any like form of government. The desire of the people can come only in God's provided way. "For thus saith the Lord of hosts, Yet once, it is a little while, and I will shake the heavens and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land; and I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come; and I will fill this house with glory, saith the Lord of hosts." —Hag. 2:6,7.

A theocracy is a government of which the chief ruler is Jehovah God. He is the Maker and Executor of its laws through his duly constituted agencies. While it is true that supreme power has always resided in Jehovah, yet with the overthrow of Israel's last king, in 606 B.C., he permitted man to take his own course and has not interfered until his time has come to set upon his throne him "whose right it is" (Ezek. 21:27). He it is whom God has appointed and anointed to rule under and in harmony with Jehovah. The prophecies applied by the holy men whom God appointed to speak must come to pass sometime, and now the time has come when the prophecies are being fulfilled.

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. Owen Pivon, at the Wainwright municipal hospital on May 7th, a girl.

Mr. Chas. Hutchison, who has been agent for the Pool elevator at Greenhills for the past six years, has been transferred to Bremner, near Edmonton—a coveted point for grain buyers. Charlie has made many friends in the district, and has been the guest of honor at a number of farewell parties both at Greenhills and Wainwright since his removal has been arranged.

Miss Violet Edwards, formerly a resident here, was a guest of Mrs. W. A. Knowles for the holiday at the week end.

It will hold nearly 200 bushels of wheat says Lou Torg of his new 2-ton Ford Truck upon which he has built a large box for hauling purposes.

We learn that Mr. H. Merrick has received the appointment at Greenhills which is being vacated by Mr. Chas. Hutchison.

Dr. H. C. Wallace is now driving his new Plymouth car which he brought on from Irma at the week end, after having to leave it there during the storm a week ago.

***Drive with peace of mind! A full protection policy on your car, covering all law suits, damage to your own car, or a car you might collide with, fire, theft, hail, lightning, wind-storms or flood, will only cost you the price of ten gallons of gas per month. It insures you against the cancellation of your driver's license and against law-suits that may make you poverty-stricken for years. Joe Welch has many of these policies in force and will give you expert advice on rates and coverages most suitable to you. Write, phone or call.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Martin, accompanied by their son, drove over to Consort to visit relatives during the holiday at the week end.

Mr. Isaac Leduc returned home on Friday from Quebec where he accompanied the remains of his father-in-law, the late Mr. H. Messier.

The members of the C.W.L. met at the rectory on Tuesday evening when a lot of business was put through.

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Alice Ruth Nagel, of Texas, was received in town last week. She lived here for some years with her parents.

Mr. D. Potvin, of Heath, has a gang of men re-modelling his home there. He plans to enjoy a modern up-to-date farm home, when finished.

Mr. A. Dupuis moved this week from the Grogan house to new premises on Queen street.

The house recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Hackett is to be occupied shortly by Mr. S. Smith of the refinery plant staff.

*** Don't take chances on law suits, smash-ups, fire or theft; keep your car insured. Joe Welch will quote you rates which are lower this year than ever before.

In just five and a-half hours on Wednesday, last, Mr. S. Bibby drove to the city, picked up a repair part, and returned home. Some travelling, we'll say, especially as the roads were in a rough state, too.

In furtherance of a plan to re-stock Clear lake with members of the fishy tribe, a number of summer campers there accompanied an official of the government fisheries department to the lakeside last week.

Miss K. Hart and Miss Beth Cummings, who have been enjoying a holiday at the coast for the past three weeks returned home on Monday's train.

Rev. and Mrs. C. N. Bateman were visitors to friends at Lloydminster over the week end.

We are glad to know that Mr. Roy Hartling, who has been so very ill at his home is now on the road to recovery.

*** You figure it will cost you from $200 to $500 to run your car this summer. Could you pay $10,000 if you had an accident, and damages were awarded against you? If you can't, you should carry insurance on your car. Joe Welch can give you information about every kind of car insurance.

Mr. F. Bennett, who is in charge of the Baptist mission in town returned last week from a visit to the city, accompanied by his wife and baby daughter.

THE W.L. WILL PROVIDE HOT TEA IN THE LOOF. HALL ON FRIDAY FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN FROM THE OUTSIDE POINTS. LUNCHEONS MUST BE PROVIDED PERSONALLY. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS RESTROOM FEATURE.

Messrs Simpson and Lambeth took a spin to the city at the week end to spend the holidays there.

The W.A. of St. Margaret's Battle Heights held an interesting meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shaw on Wednesday last, with the president, Miss Edith Bacon in the chair. Reports showed activities being carried on throughout the winter. Owing to seating time, the next meeting will be held on May 29th at the home of Mrs. R. Headon.

Mr. D. Wallace, having completed his term studies at varsity is now home with his parents for the vacation.

Mayor Middlemas was a visitor to the city last week for a couple of days on town business.
